Trial of John H. Surratt.

The most important feature of "Tuesday's" proceedings was the evidence of Cameron, called to impeach the testimony of Surgeon McMillan of the vessel on which Surratt escaped to Europe, and the most important fact in relation to this witness is, that he was pardoned by the President on the 4th instant, at the intercession of Bradley, the prisoner's counsel, that he might be used as a witness for Surratt. This fact has been known for some days, and was brought out in the cross-examination. Cameron is a Maryland rebel who called for the military, received a general's orders, ran the blockade and entered the Southern service in the summer of 1861, remaining a persistent and indefatigable rebel till the end of the war. He was a Protestant and says that he turned Catholic out of gratitude to the Pope for recognizing the confederacy. He held a chaplain's commission and seems to have been active in doing any dirty work that came to hand, using his chaplain's position as aid and shield from first to last. He was a notorious blockade runner; he belonged to Morgan's pirates and furnished the St. Albans robbers and robbers with their commissions. He has been in the Old Capitol Prison, and, while in Europe, wrote articles bolstering up the rebel cause. He has, it is understood, been indicted for stealing, and takes such interest in getting Surratt clear that since his return to the United States six weeks ago, he has not been to see his wife and children, who live but ninety miles away, and whom he has not met for nearly four years. Yet this man, coming within one of the excreted classes of the amnestied proclamations, has been pardoned out by the President since the defense began presenting their case, solely that he might appear as a witness against the government. The greater part of his testimony was a direct contradiction of that given by Surgeon McMillan, and no one but rebel sympathizers will believe a word he said.

Mr. Wilson on Confiscation.

A prominent Virginia gentleman having written to Senator Wilson, asking that government how the Southern people can avoid confiscation, he has written a letter in reply, in which, after assuring his correspondent that nothing will be done in revenge, but only for the abiding security of the country, he proceeds:

"I will suggest, my dear sir, a sure way for your people to avert from themselves confiscation, removal, desolation, restore law, order, peace, and individual and national prosperity and happiness. Let them abandon, at once and forever, the ideas, principles and politics of their best enemy, strive to conquer the prejudices, hates and passion engendered by their rebellion and the conflict they inaugurated. Let them accept the results of the nation's victory, the unity of the states, the perpetuity of the republic, the emancipation, enfranchisement and citizenship of their bondmen, their equality of rights and privileges. Let them do this in spirit as well as in form; let them establish schools for the education of both races. Let them encourage the freedom to be thrifty and temperate, to get honest and to engage in industries in varied forms; let them develop the mighty resources our heavenly Father has given the people of the sunny South, and cherish a spirit of fraternality and love. Such action will inspire affection, confidence, magnanimity; make confession an impossibility, cause disabilities speedily to disappear, and bring down upon them, their State, and their country's blessings and merits."

The tenth National Encampment is progressing at Philadelphia with a success that is eminently pleasing to all concerned. The season commenced last Saturday and closes this evening, when the various societies will have sung themselves home and won their prizes. The gathering is composed of German Singing Societies, or singing societies, from all parts of the country, and the occasion is a grand contest for excellence in choral singing, with the accompaniments of picnics and social enjoyment. The visiting societies were received in Philadelphia with salutes of artillery and displays of firework, and were welcomed by Mayor McMichael in a formal address on Saturday evening. Since that time the "rest" has been lively. This sort of entertainment is one of the social, hearty and sociable forms which the Germans have transplanted from the Patriarchal to this country, and for which we should be thankful. As a class, the amusements of the Germans are innocent and profitable, and none more so than this national singing festival, which we should like to see grow up into an established American institution.

In Germany music is the birth-right of the people, here it is an accomplishment, often an acquisition. The Singing-societies have sung themselves home and won their prizes. It is stated that a thousand of George Washington, who was unimpeachable by the rebellion, has forwarded to Thomas K. Wallace of the treasury department in the city of Washington, for see, a portrait of Washington. It purports to have been painted by Gilbert Stuart, and is said to be an admirable likeness, and the price fixed upon it four thousand dollars.

Elias Howe, Jr., who claims to be the inventor of the sewing machine, has applied to Congress for an extension of his patent for several years from September 10, 1867. The patent has been once extended, and Mr. Howe acknowledges that the profits of this invention have been nearly $200,000, but claims that he is not suddenly remunerated.

The plaintiff in a case at St. Joseph is a black man, who alleges that his late master died, leaving a will, by which plaintiff was made free, and by which provisions were made for his education, and considerable property bequeathed to him; that his defendant kidnapped him and sold him as slave at St. Louis, where he was doomed to servitude for nearly fourteen years. He alleges that he is damaged in the sum of one hundred thousand dollars, and asks judgment accordingly.

In a communication to the Senate in relation to Russian-American, the President invites the attention of Congress to the subject of the recent purchase for an appropriate sum for the payment, and also to that of proper legislation for the corruption and government of the Territory, as a part of the domain of the United States, but it is well understood that no legislation of this nature will take place this session.

The students of the senior class of Princeton College voted to accept General W. J. Jerome's gold medal to the "first gentleman" of that class, affirming that they are all gentlemen, and that none of them will be admitted. Sensible fellows.

The Picatianni (Me) Observer says politicians are selling in that market for 20 to 25 cents per bushel. There appears to be a surplus, and many who bid a large sum in the fall, waiting for high prices in the spring, have actually got it.

New Publications.

Oliver Optic's magazine, "Our Boys and Girls," for July 27, is a very interesting number. It has chapters of Breaking Away, and The Mysterious House, with a good assortment of other reading. Lee & Shepard, Boston.

Litch's Living Age for July 20, has a story entitled The Tempts of Mabry, and an interesting article from the North British Review on American Poetry. The remainder of the list is of the usual character. Little & Gay, Boston.

A number of citizens of Victoria, Vancouver's Island, have written a letter to Secretary Seward, congratulating him on the acquisition of Russian America by the United States. Speaking of the territory the letter says:

The climate west of the Cascade range of mountains, and up to sixteen degrees north latitude, and of the numerous islands bordering its shores, is much milder, both summer and winter, and much more pleasant than that of any portion of the New England States or the Canada. Its interior forests of pine are of incalculable value, the timber being much superior to that of Oregon or Washington territory, while the numerous harbors along its coasts will afford the greatest facilities for shipment. There are known to exist within the limits of the purchased territory many valuable minerals, among which are gold, silver, copper, lead, iron and extensive beds of coal, which will furnish an ample field for labor and the investment of capital. Many beautiful and rich specimens of all the materials enumerated are now in this city, which have been brought from that territory.

The agricultural capabilities of the country are no doubt inferior to that of the States and Territories lying south of it, still there are large bodies of land known to exist, so far as the country has been explored, capable of producing many of the vegetables common to temperate climates, of great excellence, and in the greatest abundance, as well as most of the cereals.

Commercially, the new territory must be of great value on account of its comparative proximity to many of the trading populations of Asia, and its possession of most of the natural productions in demand by them must ultimately create an extensive commerce.

MUSICAL NOVELTY.—The introduction of MASON & HAMMIS'S Cabinet Organs has developed new musical features which are creating a sensation. In combination with the piano, or pipe organ and violin, banjo, entertainments that were extremely interesting and attractive have been given in Boston and New York. A variety of music has been prepared expressly for these concerts, and it is very beautiful. Foreign composers of eminence are turning their attention to this new field. We can imagine nothing more pleasing in our musical experience than one of the above named concerts. Boston Journal.

The following anecdote is told of the Czar's visit to Paris, by a French journal. His Majesty used to go on incognito every morning to buy his own cigars at a shop in the neighborhood of his quarters. One morning he chance to pick up a cigar case lying on the counter. "That is Russian leather," said the shopkeeper. "You are mistaken," replied the Czar. "I am sure of it." insisted the merchant. "I am a Russian, and know the productions of my country," retorted his majesty, "and to convince you I will send you a specimen of true Russian leather." Whether the Czar actually did send the promised specimen or not, the journalist does not inform us.

JUVENILE CRIMINALS.—George B. Wilcox, of Tiverton, and Michael Waters, of this city, were arrested, and brought to this city, yesterday, by officer Sisson, of the Fall River Police, under the following circumstances. The two boys are cousins, about fourteen years of age. They left the home of Wilcox, in Tiverton, early yesterday morning, and walked five miles to the railroad depot, for the purpose of coming to Newport. The Wilcox boy had 35 cents, the Waters boy nothing. They arrived at the depot some time before the train was due, and to pass away the time, endeavored to exercise a little skill they had acquired in the way of burglary. S. Wilcox set to work, and out of a piece of white cloth, set the house and clothes of the family on fire, burning one woman to death and grievously wounding another. For this the boy was paid $30, and was very angry because they would not give him more. He and those who hired him allowed an innocent man to be tried for this murder, and would have allowed him to be hanged, they admitted, if he had been found guilty.

It is stated that a thousand of George Washington, who was unimpeachable by the rebellion, has forwarded to Thomas K. Wallace of the treasury department in the city of Washington, for see, a portrait of Washington. The developments of the Trades Union meetings at Sheffield, England, grow more terrible. The fatal confession is that of a man who says he threw a can of powder into the room of a fellow workman, which exploded, set the house and clothes of the family on fire, burning one woman to death and grievously wounding another. For this the boy was paid $30, and was very angry because they would not give him more. The Free Reading Room for the benefit of our pilots and fishermen, was opened last evening with appropriate exercises which were attended by the philanthropic organizations of this excellent project, as well as by quite a number of the class whom the movement is intended to benefit.

The opening speech was made by Hon. Charles C. Van Zandt, who spoke for nearly an hour, in his happiest vein, giving a thoroughly practical address on the importance of the power that comes to every man from self-culture, and the information to be gained from books, the magazines and the newspapers of the day, in order for an honorable existence in life. The benefits of forming a taste and habit of reading to all classes of men were set forth in an interesting and forcible manner, and illustrated in a way well calculated to fix the attention and interest of all who listened to the speaker's words. This address throughout was most admirably adapted to the occasion, and well calculated to do good in the cause which the speaker was advocating.

Mr. Van Zandt was followed in brief addresses by Wm. D. Lake, Esq., and the Rev. C. Howard Malcolm, who very suitably closed the exercises with an appropriate invocation of the blessing of Providence over the Free Reading Room.

The Houston, Texas, Telegraph says if Congress will add Mexico to the Fifth Military District, and let Sheridan reconstruct it, it would do a good thing.

The steamer Japan, formerly the Confederate iron steamer Stonewall, is being fitted for sea, and will leave early in August, to be delivered to her new owners, the Japanese, who will retain the armament which was on board when she was captured, including the splendid 36-pdr. parrot gun. Commander George Brown of the navy will be in command with T. B. Dibolt as executive officer, and the crew will be shipped on Monday next.
